10:45 AM – 12:00 PM PST

Infusing Hospitality into Workplace – Flexibility has become a key component in attracting and retaining workers and overall employee productivity. In a post-COVID era, with hybrid work the norm, old spaces will not entice workers to come back. Workplaces need to feel like a destination and, more importantly, offer conveniences employees can't find at home. The hospitality sector has a lot to teach us about creating spaces where people want to spend time. Our expert panel will discuss how the post-pandemic office can find inspiration in hospitality design to become a destination with intention that not only draws workers back, but also encourages them to stay.

- Kyle Haakenson, Porter Works (<https://porter.works/>); The Shop (<https://shop.porter.works/>)
- Tim Lepore, Host from CBRE (<https://www.cbre.com/about-us/technology/host-digital>)
- Whitney Burns, Hines

12:00 PM - 1:30 PM PST

Lunch Break & Exploration– Catered lunch and opportunity to explore Gensler's workplace. Gensler's LA office is the first vertical urban creative campus in the downtown area. With a street-level entry, the campus is comprised of a three-level atrium building connected via a custom-designed bridge to an adjacent tower. The LEED Platinum workplace serves as a creative lab for architects, designers, planners and the community. The campus features flexible workspaces, a model shop, wellness rooms, an outdoor meeting patio, a family room with a bar for coffee and snacks, and a special events space.

1:30 PM – 2:30 PM PST

Gensler – Immersive Experiences in Next Generation Design – the importance of creating the concept narrative that shapes the user experience and defines dynamic social spaces and meaningful brand engagements.

- Lauren Adams, Strategy Director, Principal, Gensler (<https://www.gensler.com/people/lauren-adams>)

2:30 PM - 3:30 PM PST

"Open Mic" Discussion – Engage in interactive 'open mic' discussion on any topics of interest, such as strategies for excess office space, hybrid work, inflation and interest rate impacts, supply chain, decarbonization, digital transformations, labor markets, and other challenges faced by corporate real estate leaders.
